RANAWAY from the subscriber, on or about the 15th day of June, 1857, his man "RICHARD," sometimes called "RICHARD MALLETT." Said Richard is a mulatto, about 33 to 35 years of age, rather likely, quick spoken, and given to talking, especially if he has been drinking; is slim built, about 5 feet 8 to 10 inches high; has had his ears pierced, and has generally worn small rings in them. He is a Carpenter by trade. He formerly belonged to Mr. Fulton, and now hired to Mr. A. McRae, Jr. He may be lurking about Wilmington, or perhaps may have gone to Weldon, Petersburg, or Norfolk, passing himself off as free, and may have obtained work at some of the railroad depots. I will give the above reward for his delivery to me, or his lodgment in any jail where I can get him.

Schools.

WAYNE FEMALE COLLEGE. THIS INSTITUTION, located in Goldsboro', N. C., is in a very prosperous condition. Since its organization under the present Faculty, its success has exceeded the expectations of its warmest friends. Entire harmony among the Teachers, excellent health, application to study and good order among the pupils; and a rapidly extending influence and increasing hold upon the public confidence, are the elements which constitute a flourishing Collegy. All of these are enjoyed by our young and growing institution. Our prospects are brightening every day, and a career of great usefullness opens before us. With these surroundings, we invite public attention to Wayne Female College, and with grateful acknowledgements for past success, we offer to lead the levels dangeless of our heavy lend to the roys fountsing.

THE WIFE'S REVENCE.

BY OLIVER OPTIC.

" No strawberries! What in the world is the reason you didn't order some?" exclaimed Edward Lester, as he entered his pleasant home in the suburbs of Boston. "You know, Maria, I am very fond of them, and you are determined to punish me in some way if you can." "Punish you, Edward? What do you talk so for?" returned the wife, a sweet little woman, full of beau-

"You know I like them very much," added the petulent husband. "But they taste too strongly of the money." "Come, come, Maria, no more of poor Richard's saws. I am heartily sick of them." "You would not have me pay sixty cents a box for strawberries, would you?" "Why not!"

" It is too much." "No, it isn't."

"You cannot afford it." "Yes I can. Isn't my salary fifteen hundred dollars

"I do not think strawberries at sixty cents a box are very profitable," replied the pretty wife, with a pleasant smile.

The brute! Edward Lester did not deserve such a beautiful, sweet-tempered wife as Maria. What busithis Court, to be held for the County of Bladen, at the Court ness had he to fret at, and scold such a lovely piece of House in Elizabethtown, the 1st Monday after the 4th Mon- womankind as she was! It was wicked, and I can hardly keep my temper while I record this wicked conduct. But Edward Lester, in spite of his petulent manner, was really an excellent fellow, and loved the pretty little woman with all his soul, though it is true he had a very singular way of showing it. He deserved a thrashing for his hasty word, yet as he eventually learn't better, it is not worth while to dwell too long upon the dark side of his character. He was a very smart salesman, and was employed in a large establishment in the city, at a salary of fifteen hundred dollars. For the first year after his marriage he had boarded, but desiring to have the comforts of home in all their purity, the young couple had decided to go to housekeeping. Edward would have hired a large house at a rent of four hundred dollars a year, if his wife had not persisted that such a dwelling would wear her life out. He then

They were at home now, and for a time the novelty the thing kept Edward in excellent humor; but he was a reckless fellow, and had no idea whatever of the value of money. He always spent all his salary, and sometimes a little more. Elward was out of humor because he had no strawberries, and when he sat down to the table, the tea was too weak, the bread tasted of salaratus, and the butter was too strong. He snarled and growled, first at Maria for six weeks in the Wilmingtion Journal, for the defendants and then at Bridget, till the wife was almost discourto appear at the next term of said Court, to be held at the ed. But she did not yield to the impulse of the moment Court House in the town of Wilmington, on second Monday and get out of temper. She kept smiling, however cutting and severe came the criticisms of her husband.

After tea he was a little mortified, for there seemed nothing more to grumble at, and even condescended to "Edward, I want fifty dollars to-morrow," said

This was rather a remarkable request for the careful little woman to make, for she was very prudent in regard to her private expenses. "Certainly, Maria," replied Edward. "I hope you are going to buy a new silk." He handed her the money, and hoped she would dress in this case, it is thereupon ordered that publication be made herself a great deal better than ever before, for he could

"I am going to spend as much money as I can," she

"That is right, Maria, do," added the reckless hus-And Edward soon had reason to repent this advice, for Maria now seemed to spend all her spare time in asking him for money. He was too reckless, too magnanimous to deny her, or to suggest that she was exceeding the bounds of reason. She was extravagant: and yet she did not seem to be dressed much better, or his house to be supplied with many additional luxuries. But he was too proud to complain. He did hint, but she would not take a hint. A year passed by, and there was no improvement in the reckless woman. Fortunately for him his salary pay down. was raised to two thousand, but it was scarcely done before Maria demanded a fifty dollar bill.

"You spend more money than you used to spend, lent fit of laughter. Maria." he suggested. "What is the use for me to pinch myself, if you spend W. I want to have the good of the money while it is going, as well as you.'

"All right, my dear," he replied. There was no improvement in the woman, and Edward in her husband's hand.

Another year passed by, and the danger of running in debt stared him in the face, "Maria, we are living too fast, I am afraid," he observed, in a melancholy mood. "I am afraid we are; for yesterday you brought home

"But I don't like that way of doing things, I don't want to get in debt. I will go and see him." And he did go and see him. The doctor was a rich man, and offered to take Edward's note payable any time he pleased, which offer the latter eagerly accepted, promising to take it up in six months.

No change for the better appeared in the affairs of the young couple Maria kept asking for money, and she was so pretty, so sweet tempered, and so gentle, that Edward could never refuse. If he demurred, she could coax it out of him. At the end of the six months the doctor's note was due, and Edward could not pay it. He had borrowed money till he was ashamed to do so any more. But he had a nice sense of honor, and instead of letting his creditor whistle for his pay, he went to see him to procure further extension.

"Doctor I am hard up," said he. "Sorry to hear it."

Sixteen hundred dollars money in hand was a large sum to Edward, who had spent everything as fast as he got it. He felt like a new man-like a rich man. What a treasure was Maria, who, besides being pretty, sweet tempered and devoted, was a thorough financier.

At last I thought I'd go to the theatre, but afore I got there, the gripes got so strong that I had to go behind a meetin' house and lay down and holler. Arter a while I got up and went into a shop and eat half a dollar's with of biled isters with four pickled cowcum-"Yes, I can," replied the pretty little woman, the bers, and wound up with a glass of brandy. Then I went into the theatre and seed the plays, but I felt so that I couldn't see any fun in 'em, for I don't think the isters and the cowcumbers done me any good. I set down, laid down, and stood up, but still it went on, gripe, gripe. I groan'd all the time, and once in a while I was obliged to screech kinder easy. Everybody stared at me, and somebody called out, 'turn him out!' once or twice. But, at last, just as the nigger Orthello was going to put the piller on his wife's face to smother her, there cum sich a twinge through me, that I really thought I was burstin' up, and I yelled out-' Oh, dear ! promise not to tell any one what an extravagant wife Oh, scissors !" so loud that the old theatre rung again.
